About Me

I'm an IT developer focused on front end web development in React and Node.js ecosystem. In the past, I have worked in different IT fields, ranging from game development in Unity, through mobile application in native Android all the way to front end development in React. I have received a Master's degree in Computer Science, however, most of my skills are self taught. I am a fast learner and my proficiency in various programming fields together with skill in 2D and 3D graphical software makes me a very versatile asset to any team.
